attention to the provisions on self-management of kitchens, laundry and common rooms, and available equipment.

All material, food or cookware, including that stored in the wall units or kitchen cupboards, left in the kitchens, will be thrown away by the service personnel.

Improper use or misuse of facilities and common services implies to take specific responsibilities for the harmful consequences that may occur to persons and things. In this respect, the Management reserves the right to sanction individual behavior that does not satisfies these rules and, in the case of material impossibility to verify the personal responsibilities, to take collective disciplinary measures according to the principle of joint liability.

For service and safety reasons, the Management has a second badge to access each room; therefore, it is not allowed to install types of closures different from the existing ones.

The management also has a second access key to the cabinets and refrigerators in the kitchen. They can be inspected at any time, with 48 hours notice, to check their state of maintenance and hygienic-sanitary conditions. In the case of rotten food or in a state of decomposition, they will be directly thrown away at the end of the inspection, in order to safeguard the hygienic safety of the premises for the other guests.

To access the building, each student is provided with a badge that can be used at any hour. If the badge gets lost or broken, an extra one will be provided with the additional cost of 8,00 euros.

Access to the rooms can also take place without the presence of the student when it is carried out by the college staff and third parties for maintenance, if accompanied by the College staff, as well as for demonstrable needs and urgencies, or for security reasons.

Article 4 - Behaviors with third parties and related responsibilities

Guest students are required to avoid behavior that might cause discomfort or damage to persons and property within the College or in the immediate vicinity, especially about noise from 10 p.m. to 7 a.m.

The guarantee deposit equivalent to three monthly rates that each guest is required to pay to the Management of the College or to the affiliated body at the admission to the College and, if required, to be then integrated, is used as compensation in case of damage or loss, or additional expenses that the College could have for reasons attributable to the guest. In this case, the Management of the College gives prompt written communication to the person concerned, together with the request to refund the damage caused to the room, locker or refrigerator, or common equipment (washing machines, dryers, ovens or microwave ovens) and to restore the security amount originally deposited. If the guest student fails to restore the security deposit within the terms provided, s/he loses the right to his/her place in the College.

Article 6 - Relationships among guest students and with the College' staff

The guest is required to have, with regard to his/her colleagues, employees and other collaborators of the College, a behavior based on absolute fairness and respect. In particular, s/he must avoid to annoy the other guests of the other rooms.

S/he must also avoid any discussion with the cleaning staff of the premises, taking care to ask only to the staff of the Management for any complaints about the poor service.

On the day set for room cleaning, the student is required to leave the room in perfect order, not to leave shoes on the floor and to keep the desk and sanitary ware free as much as possible. The assigned staff carries out the cleaning, not tidying up.

Article 7 - Disciplinary provisions

The guest, that behaves improperly or, in any case, in contrast to what indicated in this Regulation or that does not comply with instructions given by the Management about the use of facilities and services of common interest, may be subject to disciplinary action.
